

Task-Based User Interview

1. Timing Tower: Gap vs. Leader

- Visual: Official F1 TV broadcast timing tower displaying driver rankings and time gaps.

The image shows a vertical timing tower display from an F1 TV broadcast. At the top, it features the 'F1 RACE' logo and 'LAP 18/51'. Below this, a list of 12 drivers is shown with their positions, team logos, names, and time gaps. The gaps are color-coded: yellow for interval gaps and white for absolute time gaps. Driver 9, Hamilton (HAM), is highlighted with a green arrow and a green background.

Pos	Driver	Interval	Gap
1	VER	Interval	M
2	LEC	+7.508	H
3	PER	+17.712	H
4	RUS	+2.760	H
5	ALO	+11.090	M
6	NOR	+0.589	M
7	RIC	+0.614	H
8	GAS	+0.697	H
9	HAM		H
10	OCO	+0.462	H
11	TSU	+2.117	H
12	VET	+1.350	H

- Task Question: "Looking at this column of numbers, who is currently leading the race, and how far behind the leader is the driver in 3rd place?"
- Test: Whether novices can differentiate between absolute time behind the leader (+12.4s) and interval gaps between consecutive cars (+1.2s).

2. Driver Telemetry & Lap Pace

- Visual: Live timing screen with color-coded sector times (purple, green, yellow).

- Task Question: "Looking at these colored boxes next to the driver names, which driver is driving the fastest lap on track right now?"
- Test: Whether the color convention (Purple = fastest overall, Green = personal best, Yellow = slower) is self-explanatory or requires specialized knowledge.

3. Tyre Strategy Graphic

- Visual: On-screen tyre status widget showing compound color (Red/Yellow/White) and a number.

BLUE FLAG IN SECTOR 3

NOTES

- Task Question: "Can you tell me what kind of tyres Driver X is currently using, and how long they have been using them?"
- Test: Whether users recognize that the letter/color represents compound hardness (Soft, Medium, Hard) and that the number represents lap age rather than physical wear percentage.

4. Track Map & Car Positions

- Visual: 2D track map displaying numbered car dots moving around the circuit.

- Task Question: "Looking at this track map, can you point to two drivers who are currently close enough to fight for a position?"
- Test: Map spatial clarity, visual clutter when cars group up, and how easily novices distinguish between cars on the same lap vs. lapped cars.

5. Pit Window / Stop Strategy

- Visual: Broadcast pit stop graphic showing predicted re-entry position or gap to pit window.

- Task Question: "If the driver in 1st place makes a pit stop right now, where on the track will they come back out relative to 2nd place?"
- Test: Comprehension of predictive data displays vs. real-time status data.

6. Race Control / Flag Notifications

- Visual: On-screen status banner (e.g., "YELLOW FLAG", "VSC DEPLOYED", "SAFETY CAR").

- Task Question: "A banner just popped up on the top of the screen. What does this mean for the drivers on track, and are they allowed to keep racing at full speed?"
- Test: Clarity of regulatory and safety messaging during race interruptions.

7. Overall Screen Prioritization

- Visual: Busy broadcast frame with live video, timing tower, telemetry bar, and track map all visible simultaneously.

- Task Question: "If you look at this screen for just 3 seconds, what is the single main piece of information your eyes go to first?"
- Test: Visual hierarchy, information density overload, and focal points for non-expert viewers.
